

Portuguese title chosen for The Right Juice

The Portuguese title under which the low-budget, Algarve-filmed indie movie The Right Juice will be nationally launched has now been decided, and is 'O Sonho Certo – Uma História do Algarve' (The Right Dream – An Algarve Story).

To be released in cinemas nationwide by distributors NOS Lusomundo, the movie premieres in Portugal in Faro (Algarve) on Friday 29 August, at 9.30pm.

According to its promoters the premiere will be "a full-on red carpet event, dripping with glitz and glamour... well it should just be a lot of fun!"

The movie's main stars, Portuguese actress Lúcia Moniz (of Love Actually fame), Mark Killeen, Miguel Damiano, Beau McClellan and Ellie Chidzey will be on the red carpet, and the event will also be attended by various other members of the cast and crew, including the director, Kristjan Knigge and producer BJ Boulter.

The movie's promoters say they are "very proud that the Teatro das Figuras has agreed to host the screening" and invite all readers to join them on the night of the premiere "for a unique opportunity to celebrate the achievement that this film represents."

"Years of hard work and dedication by so many passionate people has paid off to create a truly independent Algarve story."

Tickets are on sale now, priced at €6, and can be purchased directly from the Teatro das Figuras via website: www.teatromunicipaldefaro.pt, or phone: (+351) 289 888 110.
